Last night I had the chance to hang out with one of the coolest, laid back, 4 time champion, Detroit Bad Boy, Best Damn Sports Show host, John Salley.

John's in town at least once a month, but this time it was for his Brother-in-law, Paul Jenkins Jr., and his organization, the Paul Jenkins Jr. Foundation. (An amazing organization that helps Children in Detroit get the things they need to succeed in life)

I sat down with John up in his suite at the Motor City Casino just to chat about what he's been up to lately.

Internet, Movies, TV, Business, Charity, John is set on leaving his mark on the world. Right now, he takes part in 3 movies a month, whether it's producing or starring. One of the latest movies he's in is called "Confessions of a Shopaholic." A movie that's being produced by local movie and TV producer, Jerry Bruckheimer.

Although he loves everything he's involved with, the internet right now is the one he's most excited about. "Print is dead" he said, and with that he's in full force at taking advantage of online trends. John is currently working with myspace founder, Brad Greenspan, in the website, www.livevideo.com.

It was great hanging out with John last night, and it was great to see him come down and talk with EVERYONE at Amnesia. So many times you hear celebrities are supposed to be at a certain Hot Spot around the city and everyone flocks to the club to only find out that person hid up in the VIP booth and left without meeting the people. John Salley came down from his suite and walked around speaking to everyone in the club.

A huge thanks to Jim and Lisa over at Publicity Works for inviting us out! You guys are awesome!
